PEOPLE'S GLOBAL ACTION ON MIGRATION, DEVELOPMENT HUMAN RIGHTS 2010

Welcome to the PGA Mexico 2010!

This year, the People's Global Action on Migration, Development and Human Rights (PGA) is being held in Mexico City, from November the 2nd to the 5th. Delegates from migrant organizations, pro-immigrant organizations, unions, faith groups, and academics around the world gather for the fourth time in this independent and plural forum, which has sought, since 2007, to introduce an agenda into the Global Forum on Migration and Development that can expand government perspectives and better represent the proposals and legitimate concerns of migrants and other stakeholders, and add a comprehensive perspective on human rights and development.

In the spirit of sharing and building upon our commitment, energy, experience and proposals, we will advance in the construction of agents for social change who are able to effectively challenge and positively transform the current migration system, putting individuals and families who migrate at the center of the debates, as subjects of human rights.

This struggle for a fair migration order is also a struggle for equality and a sustainable world.

It gives us great pleasure to welcome you to our country and our capital, declared a Hospitable City, with equity for all.

This is your house!

STRUCTURE OF OUR WORK
PGA MEXICO 2010

The work of the PGA in 2010 will be structured around five different modes of discussion:

1. Plenary meetings convene all participants and representatives, and will be held around specific themes, to present the regional process, the general concept framework and to close the meeting.
2. Thematic plenaries are large gatherings, concurrent in blocks of three, with about 200-300 participants.
3. Discussion roundtables are concurrent in two blocks, of 9 tables each day, following the discussion of the thematic plenaries.
4. Workshops, concurrent in two blocks of 18 workshops per day
5. Parallel meetings, regional dialogue spaces and special interest meeting spaces will be organized around lunch on Thursday.

1. Plenaries are open to everyone and they have specific objectives and themes:

- Discussion of migrant defense organizations to identify shared problems and challenges
- Definition of the objectives and activities of the PGA 2010
- Reactions to the general conceptual framework of the PGA, commented by Stephen Castles and Khady Sako
- Discussion and validation of the conclusions and political position of the PGA looking toward the GFMD

2. Thematic plenaries are spaces for the discussion and feedback on the critical issues identified by the PGA, on the basis of the discussion of the triggering documents developed by academic experts and civil society advocates to frame and catalyze the discussion. The themes are five, and we have commissioned documents for each of the themes, in addition to the framework:

- Human rights (I, in general and II, labor rights);
- strategic indicators for demystifying the relationship between migration and development;
- strengthening civil society organizations and networks;
- identifying policy principles to orient more equitable, humanistic and fair policies and cooperation mechanisms between governments.

3. The roundtable discussion tables immediately follow the thematic plenaries. These are the spaces where the discussion outlined in the plenaries take place, in smaller groups, in order to deepen debate over critical issues and address specifics, with the support of a facilitator for each table and a rapporteur that will present a synthetic account of the discussion, conclusions and proposals to the plenary of the PGA.

The discussion in small groups facilitates participation and allows the group to benefit from the depth, richness and diversity in the knowledge and experience of participants in the PGA.

4. Workshops are spaces proposed and coordinated by PGA participants with the goal of promoting feedback, the exchange of experiences, to sensitize and develop capacities in organizations and participants. They enable the organizations and persons participating in the workshop to identify common goals and strategies for networking and joint advocacy.

5. The regional and thematic spaces for dialogue. The PGA organization committee will offer spaces so organizations that are part of a regional working group and those who wish to discuss a specific theme can have a defined space identified in the program, on Thursday, November the 4th between 12:30 and 14:30 hours.

CULTURAL DIVERSITY FAIR

The Cultural Diversity Fair is an art celebrating activity dedicated to those who have migrated from their places of origin to other regions for several reasons. It acknowledges those groups who have come to Mexico and their positive influence in our culture. Because that is what we are: intercultural beings, a result of mixtures and influences of a humanity in continuous movement.

This fair is part of the People's Global Action on Migration, Development and Human Rights (PGA- www.accionglobalmexico.org) a model for deliberation created by civil society organizations and individuals from all over the world, and from Mexico, that this year takes place in Mexico, on the Alameda corridor, with various venues.

The fair is located in the central corridor of the Alameda park, behind the monument to Juarez, a local landmark, known as "Hemiciclo a Juárez", and it will be a gathering place for a small but substantive sample of the cultural diversity of Mexico, focusing in migrant groups. It includes the participation of individual artists and music and dance groups, graphic arts, literature, exhibition and selling of handcrafts and cuisine of migrant individuals and groups from this continent. It also includes some civil society organizations working on the defense and on behalf of rights of migrant persons.

All cultural activities in the fair within the People's Global Action Mexico City 2010 are the result of the participation and support of many individuals, groups of migrants, non governmental organizations, cultural centers, artists from Mexico and abroad, and it has had the support of the Cultural Secretariat and other areas of the Government of Mexico City.

It is a fair open to everyone, with the purpose of promoting acknowledgment and respect to cultures, because the People's Global Action on Migration, Development and Human Rights goes beyond working on proposals, deliberations and agreements to influence public policy and consolidate a continuos work on behalf of migrants. It is also a place devoted to celebrate interculturality, awareness and diversity through art and joy.

EXILE

The exile is round:
a circle, a ring
enveloped by your feet, you cross the earth,
but it is not your earth,
the light awakes you, but it is not your light,
night falls: your stars are missing
and you find brothers: it is not your blood.

One is like a ghost ashamed of not loving more those who so love us, and it is yet so strange to miss
the hostile thorns of your homeland,
the coarse neglect of your people,
the bitter affairs that still await and will still bark at you from the threshold on.
